

QUERY FOR DISTRICT FROM SENATOR JONES

Points Out to Board of Trade Danger of Representation.

Would the citizens of Washington rather be represented by 46 Representatives and 94 Senators, or one Representative and one Senator?

This was the question asked the Washington Board of Trade at a meeting in the New Willard last night by Senator William L. Jones, of the State of Washington, referring to the question of suffrage for the District.

"If you people do not represent me, is it not plausible to suppose that the interest of all the other Representatives and Senators in your city will lessen?" he asked. "When a question of concern to you comes up, would not the other members sit back and think, 'Well, let your Representative or Senator fight it out for you'?"

Senator Jones hinted that he favors representation for the District, but he impressed his hearers to consider the issue carefully.

"This is no more your city than it is the city of people living in my State," he continued. "The capital is not here because of you, but you are here because of the capital."

"Washington is the Capital of the United States. Every citizen under our flag has, or should have, an interest in this city. This should be made a model for all other cities in this nation. It should be the mecca not only of our people, but foreign people as well."

Senator Jones expressed regret because of the existence of "certain conditions" which he said were "unpleasant conditions" and "unpleasant conditions" which are a disgrace and are foul spots in this community.

"That the nation's capital should not have public schools sufficiently large to house all children properly is another shame."

Representative James T. Lloyd, of Missouri, was another speaker. He emphasized that Washington is "your home."

Representative Royal Johnson, of South Dakota, made an entertaining address.

This committee recommended that referendum No. 13, proposing an amendment to the constitution to permit the President to veto separate items in appropriation bills, should be adopted.

A rising vote was called by President Edwin C. Brandenburg, which resulted in 36 affirmative votes and 26 negative.

Selections were given by the Board of Trade Glee Club and a buffet luncheon was served.

DESERTED NINE YEARS, HAS HUSBAND ARRESTED

Searches for Recreant Spouse for Sake of Children.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Milwaukee, Jan. 22.—Outraged womanhood will nurse its wrongs in silence. Not so with motherhood.

When her husband fled from their home nine years ago with another woman, Mrs. E. O. Werner forgot her own injury in the struggle to support her sons. But after her eldest son, through his father's story, learned the truth, she began an unrelenting search for the man who had wronged her child.

The pent-up bitterness of nine years' struggle for expression in the voice of the full, black veiled woman as she pushed her story into the ears of District Attorney Zabel. She sat on the edge of her chair and nervously toyed with the hem of her coat as she talked.

By her side sat her 12-year-old boy, who frequently looked up and said, "Don't cry, mamma."

Mrs. Werner came to Milwaukee with the address of the man who she says fled from their home in Passaic, N. J., nine years ago. When the District attorney had her husband arrested, a warrant for the arrest of Erwin O. Werner, who lives at 781 Twentieth street.

When Werner was arraigned in District Court his case was continued. He was released on $500 bail.

Werner is employed as a traveling salesman.

MOVIE OF LIVE SKUNK PROVES LATEST NOVELTY

New York Zoologist Accomplishes "Stunt" Apparently Unscathed.

Special to The Washington Herald.

New York, Jan. 22.—Photographing a skunk for the "movies," in spite of all the contingent risks of such a feat, is the latest accomplishment of Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of the New York Zoological Park and one of the pioneers to show through the medium of motion pictures the habits, traits and tricks of animals.

Several days ago Mr. Ditmars happened to pass on the leeward side of the animal house coat of fur was prized as highly these days by midday. It was not the first time that Ditmars realized that some member of the skunk family was loitering in the marshes near his home, so he decided to learn more about the animal.

Although forewarned that he would be exiled from his own fireside if he dared to run such a risk, Mr. Ditmars donned his oldest overcoat and slippers and sallied forth in the direction of windward. It was evident that the skunk was still thereabouts.

The curator took along as an auxiliary to his endurance qualities a gas mask, one that was in use in the trenches of war-ridden Europe. He was rigged to tolerate the worst—let it be as deadly as it may.

Through diplomatic maneuvering and careful work the curator was able to follow his subject with his pivotal camera machine.
